Global Monitoring at Your Fingertips

RemotRadar™ is a software application that runs under the Windows operating system (NT4.0/2000/XP/2003/Vista). It is used for internet monitoring of Toshiba UPSs equipped with RemotEyeII® or Remote-D® using SNMP protocol. These devices are automatically detected and loaded into the software database.

This monitoring software is installed on a central Network Management Station (NMS), and it is used to register an error or fault in a network by either systematically polling each network device or having a network device notify the NMS when a reportable error or fault occurs.
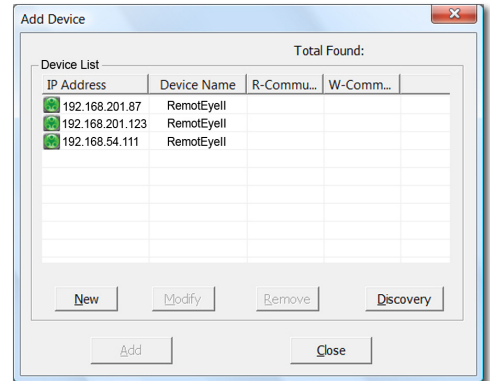

Networks using trap-directed notification require a minimal amount of polling for discovery, registering topology changes, and detecting catastrophic outages that prevent the involved unit from sending a trap. RemotRadar™ is the client software running on the NMS and operates on trap-directed notification. RemotRadar™ can manage up to 1024 devices simultaneously. These devices may be grouped hierarchically up to eight levels deep. Event notifications can be sent via email or cellular text message.
